So here his shade whose substãce is divine:
Like God in all that may his Angell sitt:
Whose sight before men like a lampe doth shyne:
The Oyle of Grace and learning feeding it:
Yet like a lampe that others sight doth grieve,
Still wasts the Oyle by which him self doth lieve.

See thy true shadowe Nature and suppose
How much thy Substance is belov'd of Harts.
O Cunning if thy Mirror could disclose
His heavenly Formes of Zeale Religion Arts;
This Picture might exactlie shewe in Hym.
